MosquitoNix expands into Charleston

By Lindsay Street , Staff Writer

Wednesday, Sept. 12, 2007

MosquitoNix, a national Dallas-based mosquito-control franchise, is expanding into the Charleston market.

By 2010, MosquitoNix plans to open 100 new franchises.

Charleston is part of three new South Carolina locations key to the company's expansion plans, said Josh Johnston, president of sales and marketing.

Each franchise costs between $40,000 to $85,000 to establish and will create 10 to 15 jobs, Johnston said.

MosquitoNix opened in 2003 and is expected to go public next month.
